EXCERPTS

Child-care services have been selected for nine public-private partnership (P3) schools being built in Saskatchewan.

Public and Catholic school districts announced on Tuesday they had chosen child-care providers to operate at six new facilities in Saskatoon, Martensville and Warman.

Child-care services for the three Regina schools were announced on March 15.

The new joint-use facilities are split between the public and Catholic school boards.

The schools are still under construction but registrations for the child-care centres will open on April 1.
