

Pathways to a more peaceful and sustainable world: The transformative power of children in families ^[1]

Author: Britto, P. R., et al.

Source: Development and Psychopathology

Format: Article

Publication Date: 1 May 2020

AVAILABILITY

Access online (Full PDF) ^[2]

Excerpt from abstract

This article provides an overview of selected ongoing international efforts that have been inspired by Edward Zigler's vision to improve programs and policies for young children and families in the United States. The efforts presented are in close alignment with three strategies articulated by Edward Zigler: (a) conduct research that will inform policy advocacy; (b) design, implement, and revise quality early childhood development (ECD) programs; and (c) invest in building the next generation of scholars and advocates in child development. The intergenerational legacy left by Edward Zigler has had an impact on young children not only in the United States, but also across the globe. More needs to be done. We need to work together with a full commitment to ensure the optimal development of each child.

Region: International ^[3]

Tags: child development ^[4]

social policy ^[5]

advocacy ^[6]

Source URL (modified on 26 Jan 2021): <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/research-policy-practice/21/01/pathways-more-peaceful-and-sustainable-world-transformative>

Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/research-policy-practice/21/01/pathways-more-peaceful-and-sustainable-world-transformative> ^[2]

https://www.unicef.org/tajikistan/media/2991/file/UNICEF & Cambridge article on ECE.pdf ^[3]

<https://childcarecanada.org/category/region/international> ^[4] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/child-development> ^[5]

<https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/social-policy> ^[6] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/advocacy>