

International women's day survey 2022: Careers and child care^[1]

Author: Bruce, J., Cereso, I., Soriano-Redondo, I., Ridley-Castle, T.

Source: The Global Institute for Women's Leadership - King's College London

Format: Report

Publication Date: 8 Mar 2022

AVAILABILITY

Access online^[2]

Excerpted from key findings:

Gender-based violence were ranked as the most important issues facing women and girls: sexual harassment (29%), sexual violence (25%) and domestic abuse (23%) were considered the top issues.

One in three people (35%) around the world believe childcare responsibilities can damage a woman's career more than a man's, and one in three women also say caring responsibilities have impacted their careers (31%).

Women are more likely to perceive institutional gender bias than men, with educational and healthcare institutions perceived as the most equal – 52% considered that these treat women and men the same.

Related link: One in five Britons say their careers have been held back by childcare or other care duties^[3]

Region: International^[4]

Tags: gender inequity^[5]

care economy^[6]

female labour force participation^[7]

Source URL (modified on 16 Mar 2022): <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/research-policy-practice/22/03/international-womens-day-survey-2022-careers-and-child-care>

Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/research-policy-practice/22/03/international-womens-day-survey-2022-careers-and-child-care> [2]

<https://www.kcl.ac.uk/giwl/assets/international-women-s-day-survey-2022---careers-and-childcare.pdf> [3]

<https://childcarecanada.org/documents/child-care-news/22/03/one-five-britons-say-their-careers-have-been-held-back-childcare-or> [4]

<https://childcarecanada.org/category/region/international> [5] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/gender-inequity> [6]

<https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/care-economy> [7] <https://childcarecanada.org/taxonomy/term/8939>