

Landry eyes 1,000-day drive to sovereignty. But PQ premier must lead third-ranked party to re-election first [QC] ^[1]

Author: Fraser, Graham

Source: The Toronto Star

Format: Article

Publication Date: 8 Sep 2002

AVAILABILITY

Text below

EXCERPT:

"As part of the preparations for the election and subsequent referendum, Landry laid out several policy themes in addition to sovereignty, including:

Full employment.

Access to health care with a commitment that every Quebec resident will have access to a family doctor 24 hours a day, 365 days a year by 2005.

Enrichment of the secondary school program.

An expansion of the $5-a-day child care program.

A battle against poverty.

An improvement of regional development.

A new environmental policy of water protection.

Modernization of government in Quebec."

reprinted from The Toronto Star.

Region: Quebec ^[2]

Tags: spaces ^[3]

Source URL (modified on 27 Jan 2022): <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/child-care-news/02/09/landry-eyes-1000-day-drive-sovereignty-pq-premier-must-lead-third>

Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/child-care-news/02/09/landry-eyes-1000-day-drive-sovereignty-pq-premier-must-lead-third> [2]

<https://childcarecanada.org/taxonomy/term/7855> [3] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/spaces>