

Childcare provision: Whose responsibility? Who pays? ^[1]

Chapter 12, Kids count: Better early childhood education and care in Australia

Author: Goodfellow, Joy

Source: The University of Sydney Library

Format: Book / booklet

Publication Date: 11 Dec 2007

AVAILABILITY

- Full chapter in pdf. ^[2]

Description:

In this chapter, Goodfellow first provides a brief sketch of what is known about human development and social capital building within the context of childcare provision. Next, Goodfellow constructs child care as a marketplace in order to reflect the current debates about childcare provision and contemplates what this might mean from a parent or consumer perspective. Finally, these understandings are used to identify possibilities with respect to who should provide and who should pay for the out of home care of young children who are of below school age.

Region: Australia and New Zealand ^[3]

Tags: privatization ^[4]

pre-school ^[5]

Source URL (modified on 27 Jan 2022): <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/research-policy-practice/08/02/childcare-provision-whose-responsibility-who-pays>

Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/research-policy-practice/08/02/childcare-provision-whose-responsibility-who-pays> ^[2]

<http://ses.library.usyd.edu.au/dspace/bitstream/2123/2148/3/KidsGoodfellowCh12.pdf> ^[3] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/region/australia-and-new-zealand> ^[4] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/privatization> ^[5] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/pre-school>