

Ethical considerations in research with children and those around them ^[1]

Event Website: Flyer ^[2]

Contact email: reach@uvic.ca ^[3]

Details

REACH is an interdisciplinary group of investigators, including faculty, research associates, and graduate students, based at the University of Victoria and in the community. Established in 2003, REACH is contributing to new knowledge and applications of knowledge about early childhood education, health and development in community and cultural contexts. REACH is pleased to announce this seminar by Dr. Ann Farrell (Queensland University) and Dr. Jessica Ball (University of Victoria). Dr. Farrell is editing the upcoming collection entitled Ethical Research with Children. Dr. Ball is a contributing author to the book. Her chapter deals with ethics of research involving Indigenous children and those around them.

Source URL (modified on 7 Aug 2020): <https://childcarecanada.org/resources/events/ethical-considerations-research-children-and-those-around-them>
Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/resources/events/ethical-considerations-research-children-and-those-around-them> ^[2]

http://www.reach.uvic.ca/flyer/July22_Farrell_Ball.pdf ^[3] <mailto:reach@uvic.ca>