

Affordable daycare unresolved problem [CA-ON] ^[1]

Author: Swainson, Gail

Source: Toronto Star

Format: Article

Publication Date: 27 Mar 2009

AVAILABILITY

See text below.

EXCERPTS

Names: Suzanne and Mark Locke

Employment status: Both are full-time elementary school teachers.

What's in the budget for me: "Not much," Suzanne said. "I feel that by paying more sales tax on so many things, they are putting a couple of pennies in one pocket and taking dollars out of another."

Suzanne and Mark Locke give the budget a failing grade when it comes to making affordable, quality daycare available to working parents.

The Maple couple are expecting a baby at the end of June, a sibling for Nathan, 2. When Suzanne returns to work in 2010, daycare will be the family's single biggest expenditure – more than their mortgage. "Right now, I'm not worried; it's $800 a month for Nathan and we can handle that," Suzanne said. "But when I go back to work next year, we will be paying $1,900."

Even with a combined household income in the six figures, the couple will find paying daycare for two a tight squeeze, she said. Suzanne, 33, is concerned that, other than some infrastructure money for new schools, there is little in the budget for education. ... Mark, a 32-year-old Grade 1 teacher, is worried the harmonized tax will push the costs of goods and services ever higher.

...

- reprinted from the Toronto Star

Region: Ontario ^[2]

Tags: budget ^[3]

affordability ^[4]

public opinion ^[5]

Source URL (modified on 27 Jan 2022): <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/child-care-news/09/04/affordable-daycare-unresolved-problem-ca>
Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/documents/child-care-news/09/04/affordable-daycare-unresolved-problem-ca> [2]

<https://childcarecanada.org/taxonomy/term/7856> [3] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/budget> [4]

<https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/affordability> [5] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/public-opinion>