

What research says about quality in for-profit, non-profit and public child care <sup>[1]</sup>

Childcare Resource and Research Unit

31 Oct 2011

4pp

Debates about profit-making in human services include a range of considerations such as access and equity, the idea of the "public good", and democratic participation. A main focus of debates about for-profit early childhood education and care (ECEC) in Canada has been the impact of profit-making on program quality. Quality is a salient consideration in child care; child development research shows conclusively that "quality matters": good quality benefits children while poor quality may be detrimental. Thus, research from Canada, the United States, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, etc. that shows significant quality differences between for-profit and not-for-profit sectors is of interest. This BRIEFing NOTE reviews the literature on quality in for-profit, non-profit and public child care.

Download this BRIEFing NOTE

| Attachment   | Size      |
|--|-----------|
|  What research says about quality in for-profit, non-profit and public child care <sup>[2]</sup> | 453.16 KB |

Tags: quality <sup>[3]</sup>

privatization <sup>[4]</sup>

BRIEFing NOTES

---

Source URL (modified on 2 Jul 2020): <https://childcarecanada.org/publications/briefing-notes/11/11/what-research-says-about-quality-profit-non-profit-and-public-chil>

Links

[1] <https://childcarecanada.org/publications/briefing-notes/11/11/what-research-says-about-quality-profit-non-profit-and-public-chil>

[2] <https://childcarecanada.org/sites/default/files/What%20research%20says%20about%20quality%20in%20fp%20np%20and%20p%20child%20care.pdf>

[3] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/quality>

[4] <https://childcarecanada.org/category/tags/privatization>