

Canada's participation in the second round of reviews

The Canadian Review followed the protocols designed by participating countries. A national Background Report, answering a set of questions common to all the Country Reviews, was commissioned by Human Resources Development Canada. Following its completion, a team of four international ECEC experts came to Canada in September 2003. Based on their site visits, interviews, and review of the Background Report and other documents, the expert OECD team prepared a second report on ECEC in Canada – the Canada Country Note – identifying key strengths and weaknesses and making suggestions for progress.
